LA JOLLA, CALIFORNIA-

WHAT

Big Data, Machine Learning/AI, and Digital Money: How are they Changing Everything?: How are Machine Learning and AI transforming our economy? Who owns your personal data, or “digital exhaust?” Should we embrace these new capabilities or fear them? Can machines learn finance? Will the central banks lose control of money to private digital money, or will they create and control digital money? How will the current payments systems and institutions change? Join the Global Interdependence Center (GIC) in La Jolla, California as industry and central bank expert panels answer these questions and Raphael Bostic, the President and CEO of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, gives the keynote presentation. GIC is delighted to once again work with the University of California, San Diego Rady School of Management to bring students, the industry's top professionals, and members of GIC, together for this educational and network opportunity.
