PHILADELPHIA, PA-

WHAT

38th Annual Monetary and Trade Conference: Monetary Policy Interventions in the Covid-era: Implications and Consequences: On November 19, 2020, the Global Interdependence Center will host its Annual Monetary & Trade (AMT) Conference in partnership with the LeBow College of Business at Drexel University. 2020 will mark the year of the 38th AMT Conference, this year held virtually. This conference will serve as a forum to discuss macroeconomic and financial stability implications, as well as possible unintended consequences of the Fed monetary policy interventions during the COVID-19 Pandemic. Special attention will be placed on the potential of future inflation pressures and the development of market expectations for further accommodating policies by the Federal Reserve.
